DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-10 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The prior art of record, Web@TM teaches a virtual ATM screen display in which a destination electronic mail address for receiving a transaction record being provided. Tognazzin¹ teaches providing a digital receipt and sending an electronic copy to a default electronic mail address. Web@TM teaches a virtual ATM screen display of customer-selectable options, the options comprising transmitting the transaction record and printing the transaction record and when customer selects the option to transmit the transaction record or both, transmitting and printing the transaction record; transmitting the transaction record to a default or temporary destination electronic mail address. Tognazzin¹ and Web@TM, in combination teaches a display for providing options of printing or transmitting or both of a transaction record and printing or transmitting or both depending upon the options selected by customer and inputting a number of transaction to print or transmit. Applicant argued that while a person using a personal computer may be able to both print and email documents the capability is not available in existing ATM machines and thus the prior art of record has not demonstrated that this capability is available in existing ATM machines. The examiner agreed and allowed the application since the prior art does not teach the existing ATM machine providing options to print and email transaction records. Therefore the prior art, either singularly or in combination fail to teach or suggest, providing options to print or transmit or both, transaction records at an existing ATM machine and printing or transmitting the transaction records to a default or temporary destination
